SALT LAKE CITY – Today marks day five of Tim Bridgewater’s “29 Counties in 29 Days Tour” through Utah. On October 26th, Tim Bridgewater announced that he will be traveling to all 29 counties of the state in 29 days to hear the concerns of citizens and share with them his vision for a better America.

“With a new generation of leaders in Washington, we can guide America into a future where government teaches self reliance and provides an environment where individuals, small businesses and communities can succeed without support from and dependence on Washington’s money changers” Bridgewater tells supporters at various stops along the tour.

On Saturday Tim will be meeting with voters in Tooele County explaining why he thinks it is time send a new generation of leaders to Washington D.C. All meetings are open to the public and anyone interested is invited to attend.

The following event is scheduled for Saturday October 31st, day six of Bridgewater’s 29 day tour:

Tooele County Visit
Where: Tooele City Library
When: 10:30 a.m.

So far, Tim has visited eight counties in five days: Juab, Millard, Beaver, Garfield, Piute, Wayne, Sevier, and Sanpete. Regular updates of his schedule will be posted on his campaign website www.timbridgewater.com.
