SALT LAKE CITY – Republican candidate Tim Bridgewater continues his “29 Counties in 29 Days” tour through Utah. This weekend he will be visiting voters in Cache, Box Elder, Weber, Davis, Salt Lake, and Utah Counties. On October 26th, Tim Bridgewater announced that he will visit every county in the state over 29 days to hear the concerns of citizens and to share with them his vision for a better America.

Bridgewater’s message for supporters along the tour is simple: “With a new generation of leaders in Washington, we can guide America into a future where government promotes self-reliance and allows individuals, small businesses and communities to succeed without support from and dependence upon Washington’s money changers.”

All meetings along the tour are open to the public. Friday and Saturday Tim will be meeting with voters at the following locations to hear their concerns and seek their support:

Friday, November 13

6 p.m. – Cache County
Student Forum with Tim Bridgewater
USU Engineering Building Room 106, Logan

Saturday, November 14

10:30 a.m. – Box Elder County
Box Elder County Library
26 East Forest Street, Brigham City

1:30 p.m. – Weber County
Weber County Library
2464 Jefferson Street, Ogden

Saturday, November 14, Continued

4:30 p.m. – Davis County
Centerville Branch Library
45 South 400 West, Centerville

6:30 p.m. – Salt Lake County
Interlink Management Offices
10500 South 1300 West, South Jordan

8:15 p.m. – Utah County
Home of Lawrence and Carole Clarke

Bridgewater is challenging three-term Senator Bob Bennett. A recent poll of 600 voters shows that if the election were held today only one third of registered Republican voters would re-elect Bennett to his fourth term. More than half would prefer another candidate and 15% of voters were undecided.

Tim is expected to finish his tour on November 23rd. So far, Tim has visited 16 counties in 18 days: Tooele, Juab, Beaver, Millard, Garfield, Sevier, Sanpete, Piute, Wayne, Daggett, Uintah, Duchesne, Salt Lake, Utah, Rich, and Morgan. Regular updates of his schedule will be posted on his campaign website www.timbridgewater.com.
